Brooklyn Law School Faculty Hiring Announcement

Brooklyn Law School seeks applicants to fill three or more full-time, entry-level or lateral tenured or tenure-track faculty positions with an expected start date of July 1, 2023. Brooklyn invites applications from candidates with teaching and research interests across all areas of law, with special interest in fields including constitutional law (First Amendment, federal courts, and associated fields), international law and international economic law, torts, contracts, commercial law, corporations, antitrust, and other business law subjects.

Founded in 1901, Brooklyn Law School has a history, tradition, and mission of educating students from a wide range of backgrounds, including underrepresented communities. The School prides itself on producing thoughtful, public-minded lawyers who graduate ready and able to practice in both public and private law settings. The faculty is renowned for its scholarly contributions to major legal debates and socio-political movements, as well as for its devotion to teaching.

Brooklyn Law School is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and strives to build a diverse community of faculty, students, and staff that particularly welcomes applicants who can contribute to our mission of creating and maintaining a vibrant and diverse law school. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age, or protected veteran status.

Interested candidates are welcome to apply through the AALS Faculty Appointments Register or by sending a cover letter, C.V., and any other supporting documents to Professor Robin Effron (Chair of the Appointments Committee) at robin.effron@brooklaw.edu.
